- hand-eye coordination
- fine motor skills
- language skills development
- remedy of individual language problems
- articulation
- frustration tolerance

developed in cooperation with speech therapists

Parrot

An exciting game that uses both language and colour. It promotes language development, articulation, assigning colours, attentiveness, fine motor skills and hand-eye coordination in a playful way, and, last not but not least, frustration tolerance. Basic idea of the game: each player gets a game board and must arrange the coloured balls into the same coloured holes on the game board. A special feature is that the balls are hidden in the eggs before the game begins. The colour that the children draw is therefore a coincidence. Can be played according to different rules depending on the age of the players.

Contents: 4 cards (18 x 18 cm), 28 two park plastic eggs in yellow/red, 24 wooden balls in 8 colours (2 cm in diameter), 1 set of instructions. Players: 2-4. Age: 3 years and up. Length of the game: 5 - 25 minutes, depending on the version.
